

A metadata contract across the research-data lifecycle

PRISM carries instrument definitions, validation rules, and provenance from study design to controlled sharing.

The same structured metadata is available to interactive and automated workflows; validation occurs before data leave the project.